Gateway launches art sales series to benefit public art

BY MICHELE D. MANISCALCO

On Tuesday, May 22, Washington Gateway Main Street (WGMS) held an art party at 460 Harrison Avenue as the beginning of ARTSE, a series of benefit events to sponsor more outdoor and public art. The inaugural event was a casual-chic affair showcasing contemporary and street art by local artists.

Guests washed down small bites from local eateries with the wares of Woburn's Lord Hobo Brewery and Blue Chair Bay rum cocktails while DJ Braun Dapper spun funk, soul, disco and hip-hop favorites. Downstairs in the old Mohr McPherson space, there was a large board on which guests could write their wishes created the 2015 whale mural on Traveler Street facing Ink Block; Rob "Problak" Gibbs, founder of Artists for Humanity; and Imagine, a Nepalese woman street artist whose work incorporates her unique calligraphic style of the Nepalese alphabet.

Works in the exhibit were priced from under $100 to over $3,000, with a portion of the sales proceeds benefiting WGMS.

ARTSE encompassed not only art on the walls but live creation by Go5 of the CN Crew, who painted live during the reception. Photographer Gabriel Ortiz had three photos in the show, all taken in an abandoned commuter-rail station inhabited by homeless people: "BlackSwan," a portrait of dramatically made-up and dressed, dark-haired woman in the station; "Product of My Environment" and "Train Spotting."

When this writer described his images as painterly in their depiction of their subjects, Ortiz responded, "Even though they are painterly, they still have a gritty darkness to them. I kind of like the contradiction of something nice in a gritty environment."

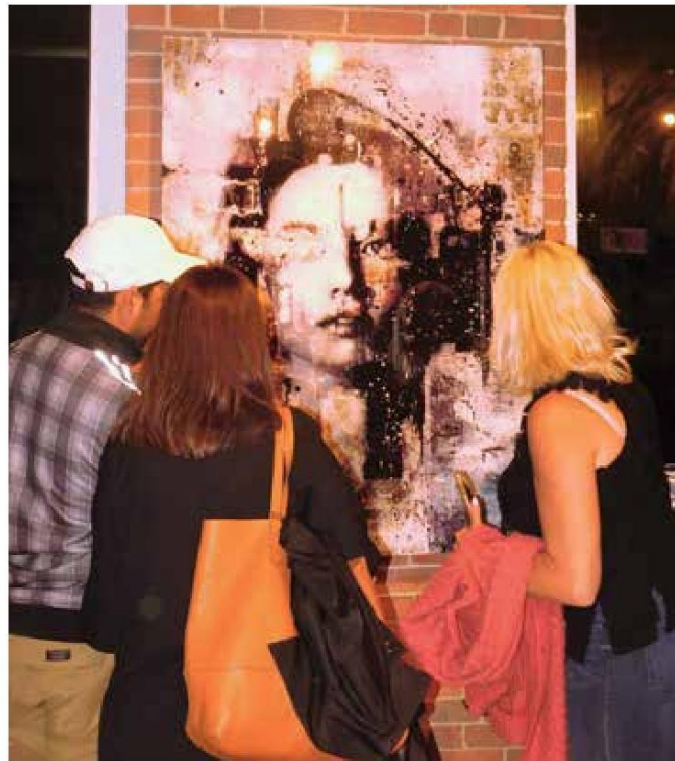

In a follow-up email, WGMS board president Kristin Phelan declared the ARTSE debut party a success. "We were thrilled with the launch of ARTSE; the vibe and energy felt throughout the night was inspiring. Not only did the event raise funds for a new South End public art initiative, we gained a great deal of feedback from the community regarding the type of art they want to see in the neighborhood," Phelan wrote.

A June 1 follow-up party, ARTSE X, was held at the same venue, with a student from Cathedral High School playing the piano. According to Phelan, WGMS sold 350 tickets at $15 each for the debut event on May 22, and between the May 22 party and its follow-up, ARTSE X, held in the same venue on Friday, June 1 as part of SoWa First Friday, the organization raised over $20,000 toward its outdoor-art initiative.

Elsewhere, a popular public art installation has returned to Washington Street. "Nimbus", the cloud-like cluster of lights that perched above the fountain in Franklin Square last fall, was placed in the same spot for the summer earlier this month. Across the street in Blackstone Square, WGMS brings back a warm-weather favorite, the Summer Solstice party, from 5:30-8:30 PM on Thursday, June 21 with live music by the Savin Hillbillies featuring South End Community Health Center CEO Bill Walczak and the Tyson Jackson Trio; food from a variety of local food trucks; a beer garden brought to you by Lord Hobo Brewing Co. of Woburn; a fitness class by barre3 and Endurance Pilates and Yoga; and kids' activities including soccer led by South End Soccer as well as balloon twisting.

lively new take on self-empowerment.

Now the Lyric Stage Company of Boston is giving that take impactful added feminist awareness in an engaging and high-energy revival under the guidance of African-American guest director Dawn M. Simmons.

With the robust conducting of music director Allyssa Jones, Simmons is giving the gospel and rock-rich score an intriguing addition of zydeco styling. One could contend that this riff of Louisiana ambiance does not really add anything integral to the musical, but Jones and her fellow musicians play throughout with impressive spirit.

Addaperle, the Good Witch of the North, makes a lively entrance and significantly advises Dorothy to put on Evamine's magical silver slippers once the young woman's tornado-tossed home kills the Wicked Witch of the East. Deepening understanding marks the quartet as they bond. The friendship and solidarity of women takes on added importance here with an actress playing Scarecrow.

The Tinman has an unusual connection with a saxophone, and cowardly Lion takes on particular vulnerability in this staging. Until Dorothy actually reaches the Emerald City, however, the pacing seems to have its slow moments as her fellow travelers join her one by one. Things do go into higher gear after Eviline the Wicked Witch of the West begins to menace the quartet with the assistance of her Snow Monkeys.

There are high gear talents in the Lyric Stage ensemble. Salome Smith captures Dorothy's wide-eyed adventurousness as well as her empathy for her fellow Yellow Brick Road travelers. She sings her character's anthem-like "Home" with dramatic build-up. Davron S. Monroe has all of the Wiz's bravado and vulnerability and delivers his signature solo "Believe in Yourself" with great feeling.

Soneka Anderson, substituting for Elle Borders, displays good tenacity as Scarecrow. Steve Martin has the right insecurity as Tinman. Brandon G. Green is a standout as confident Lion, especially on his vivid solo "Mean Old Lion." Yewande Odeto Yinbo proves a true find doubling as warm Addaperle and cold Eviline. Designer Amber Voner turns the characters' very different costumes into a kind of silent commentary on their personalities.

Ease on down to the Lyric Stage. Some of the mic-less performers may be competing with the orchestra, but this revival of "The Wiz" deserves to be heard.

Imagine Shakespeare's famed Danish prince as a Philip Marlowe-like sleuth with his own Elsinore Detective Agency. Now put Little H in 1949 Los Angeles with a street savvy assistant named Rae—who combines the love and loyalty of the secretary and the voice and vivaciousness of the vocalist in the hit Broadway musical "City of Angels."

Give the plot of the original tragedy a clever surprise and the dialogue an enjoyable blend of humor and wit. What you have is a "Noir Hamlet," a delightful Centastage world premiere at the Boston Center for the Arts' Plaza Black Box Theatre.

Company founder Joe Antoun keeps this 90-minute mystery by local playwright John Minigan as taut and engrossing as his earlier atmospheric production of Joe Byers' new play IRNE Award winner "The Fakus :A Noir." Curtained areas smoothly open and close as the play's 10 scenes—most at Little H's agency or his mother Gertrude and husband Claude (Shakespeare's Claudius)'s home—are staged.

At the same time, scene set changers dressed in black fedoras and trench coats in line with the detective's own attire move so expertly that their efforts do not distract from Minigan's re-imagining.

Never a carbon-copy adaptation, "Noir Hamlet" proves an inspired take-off that keeps key elements of Shakespeare's plotting, pays homage to 20th century film noir gems like "The Big Sleep" and "Chinatown" yet achieves a theatrical rhythm consistent with Minigan's own alternately sly and witty dialogue. Look for a song inside the play—"Send Me To the Electric Chair" performed by Rae—during which Little H tests Claude's reaction ala the play within the play to "catch the conscience of the king" in "Hamlet."

Watch for a funny and telling penultimate morgue scene with a gurney twist that calls to mind the skull of Yorick and graveyard comic relief in Shakespeare's play. A talkative rival detective named Paolo Niro somewhat resembles Claudius' buffoonish advisor Polonius. Shakespeare buffs will notice that there are no counterparts to Ophelia or her brother Laertes.

There is no Horatio either, though one could argue that Rae—like Horatio—has a key moment regarding a pivotal saxophone connected with the Ghost of Big H and a moving moment with Little H that could allude to his romance-like camaraderie with his best friend.

Antoun's stellar cast captures all the demands of Minigan's take-off. Paul Melendy, also memorable in the Byers play, has the right inquisitive spirit and spunk in a performance that calls to mind Bogart and Nicholson. Cristhian Mancinas-Garcia gives a strong gender-bending performance as both trusting and enigmatic Rae. His rendition with fine accompaniment on piano by Jon Goldberg is a highlight. Robert D. Murphy—in a strong triple turn—has the vindictiveness of Ghost, the slithering geniality of Claude and the over-assuredness of Paolo Niro. Liz Adam catches Gertrude's tough love with Little H and displays a demeanor that calls to mind Bacall.

"Hamlet" fans and noir aficionados should embrace Minigan's light-hearted yet verbally rollicking take-off. Everyone is likely to re-explore the works of Raymond Chandler and Shakespeare's great tragic discourse on inner truth and integrity after seeing Centastage's captivating "Noir Hamlet."

Pet of the Week

Jill is a 13-year-old Silky Terrier with one eye removed due to a medical issue. Jill comes from a home with quite a few other dogs, which likely overwhelmed her. She is an independent girl not interested in cuddling, but who loves listening to you speak. Jill takes time to warm up to new people and sudden movement can make her nervous. If you are looking for an easy going, low maintenance companion that appreciates space, Jill would love to spend her retirement with you. Jill is in a foster home and arrangements will need to be made to meet with her.

For more information on Jill, or any of the other animals currently residing at the Animal Rescue League of Boston, please contact us at 617.226.5602. The shelter is open Tuesday through Thursday 1-7pm & Friday through Sunday 1-4pm, excluding some holidays.

Boston Non-Profit Silver Lining Mentoring Honored

By The New England 500 Clubs

SUBMITTED BY BISHOPP COMMUNICATIONS

Silver Lining Mentoring (SLM), the only mentoring organization in Massachusetts that exclusively serves youth in foster care, was honored by the New England 500 Clubs, at the organization's recent Gala. Founded in 2001, SLM empowers foster youth in Greater Boston to flourish through committed mentoring relationships and the development of essential life skills.

SLM provides long-term, one-to-one mentoring for young people age 7 and up removed from their homes due to abuse or neglect through their Mentors Program as well as skills workshops about employment, healthcare, and other life skills for older youth ages 16 and up who are preparing to age out of the foster care system. SLM mentors are often times the only adults in their mentees' lives who are not paid to spend time with them.

Selected from more than a dozen non-profit organizations nominated for the grant by members of the NE500/501 Circle, the New England 500 Clubs' philanthropic endeavor, Silver Lining Mentoring was nominated by South Boston resident and Boston attorney Brett Barthelmeh.

Says Barthelmeh, "I came to know Silver Lining Mentoring Director of Development Cori Mykoff and CEO Colby Swettberg through my involvement with the Boston Estate Planning Council. As the Counsel's liaison to the organization, it has been my privilege to learn about the organization's vital mission and tremendous and caring staff."

Community Housing Clinic

The Office of Housing Stability's Community Housing Clinic is a tremendous resource for residents — tenants and landlords — to talk one-on-one with a housing professional about landlord-tenant laws, learn how to access affordable housing opportunities and discover housing resources available to landlords and tenants. Tenants can learn about their rights if their building is sold, their rents are rising or they're facing eviction. Landlords can get information on enforcing lease provisions, cost-effective resources to resolve disputes and programs to support home repairs and maintenance.

Every Thursday 5:00 – 7:00 PM

Where: Department of Neighborhood Development, 26 Court Street Boston, MA 02108

More Info: Please call 617-635-4200 or email Lydia.edwards@boston.gov

Free Bilingual Playgroup

There is a free Jamaica Plain based playgroup in English and Spanish for children ages 1-5 years old. Each playgroup is 2 hours long, and parents should bring their children once a week. The playgroup takes place in a classroom setting and the goal is preparation for kindergarten. Each playgroup includes free play, circle time, snack time, and a gross motor/sensory activity. Parents are responsible for providing their own snacks. This is also an opportunity for parents to become familiar with Boston Public Schools and to meet other BPS parents. Open enrollment—register today.
